Hello friends,

Wow! We are delighted to be issuing Hilarity for Charity’s first annual report. We want to thank you, our dear friends, for supporting us in this amazing journey to raise awareness, accelerate progress in Alzheimer’s care, and inspire a new generation of advocates.

When Adele (Lauren’s mom) was diagnosed with Alzheimer’s disease at the age of 55, we founded HFC to take action and make a difference. What started as a comedy event has turned into a national organization. We are now even more committed to helping the more than 6 million Americans who have this disease and the more than 16 million who provide unpaid care for their loved ones.

In the past 7 years, we have hosted 10 variety shows that raised funds for critical care and support for families facing this disease. Thanks to so many of you, HFC has provided family caregivers with over 250,000 hours of the care and the relief they deserve. Through programs like HFC U for college students, we give young people a voice. And, through our investment in brain health education and Alzheimer’s research, we have prioritized the most promising evidence-based Alzheimer’s risk reduction strategy: living a brain-healthy lifestyle.

We will continue to create new programs and events, bring together world-class entertainers and scientists, raise awareness, and most importantly add some laughter and light to this terrible disease.

Many thanks again for your support,

Lauren Miller Rogen

2018 was an exciting and productive year for HFC!

Shortly after receiving 501(c)(3) status, we began assembling a professional team, opened an office on the east coast, and partnered with Netflix to stream our LA Variety Show event to a global audience. We also made a strategic decision to focus on brain health through an investment in research and development of digital brain health coursework for high school, college, and medical students.

Since our founding in 2012, Hilarity for Charity has raised over $11 million, launched a national Homecare Relief Grant Program that has awarded over 250,000 hours of care, created an online national support group program to build community and connectivity, and engaged young people to become Alzheimer’s advocates. These accomplishments would not have been possible without your support and guidance.

In 2018, we partnered with Netflix, NewYork-Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medicine and Humble Bundle and strengthened our existing partnerships with Caring Across Generations, Us Against Alzheimer’s and Rivet Revolution. We look forward to continued collaboration with partners and other leading organizations working tirelessly to find a solution to ending Alzheimer’s disease.

In the pages that follow, you will learn about HFC’s programs and impact. You will read stories of family caregivers who have received respite relief through our Homecare Relief Grant Program. You will also read about remarkable people who have raised money on our behalf through HFC Presents. We are grateful for the incredible effort of our fans, friends, and partners.

Of course, we have much to accomplish for the remainder of 2019. We look forward to continuing to fund innovative programming, enhance and increase the care and support we provide and create new ways for our loyal followers and new friends to become involved. Together, we can raise more money, help more families and learn what we can all do to live a brain-healthy life.

Warm regards,

Dan Miller

BEVERLY

When I began caring for my mom, I left a job I loved to be her 24/7 caretaker. I never could have imagined the toll it would take on me, but I also couldn’t bear the thought of taking a respite. At a certain point, I realized that I needed help. I had to let go of my guilt and allow someone else to come in and assist. There was no time for the normal life activities I had previously taken for granted because my entire focus had been on my beloved mother.

I researched options available in my area and soon came to the conclusion that there is virtually no financial aid for the thousands of people who care for loved ones. If I didn’t find a way to get some relief, I knew my health and well-being would be in jeopardy. Understanding that my role as her caregiver was only going to become more intense as my mother’s health declined, I was thrilled when I found HFC. I applied for a care grant, which provides in-home care relief, allowing me to take a break in order to maintain my sanity.

The HFC grant gave me hours to care for myself. I was able to go to the doctor and the dentist and, on occasion, have some sorely needed alone time. HFC’s care grant also gave me the opportunity to find mental health help through a local support group. I also rediscovered and reinvested my time in a personal activity I enjoyed in the past.

There are not enough words to describe HFC care grant’s value. I cannot imagine what my physical or mental state of mind would be without those hours of respite. I’m not overstating when I say that this grant saved my life.

My mother died in January of this year. I lived with her in my home for fourteen years, and it was the most difficult and rewarding role I’ve ever held. In the midst of this, I also fought my own battle with breast cancer. I am now cancer free and writing a book on my caregiving journey.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart for offering the HFC Care grant! Words can never fully express this grant’s value to those of us who sacrifice so much in caring for our loved ones.

LEE & MARCIA

Our situation was pretty rough on a number of fronts when I applied for the HFC care grant in 2017. During that past year I had been the primary caregiver for our adult son Keith, who has mid-stage Alzheimer’s and Down Syndrome. I was also caring for my wife who was seriously ill and not able to help much with our son due to being weak and in pain.

Our financial status was precarious as I had retired early to help my wife with Keith. Having gone through almost all of our savings due to insurance and medical costs, I was sinking fast physically and emotionally. I needed caretaking help.

Our kind and wise Home Instead representative suggested that we apply for HFC’s Care grant. When we were notified that we received a grant, it was like we had won the lottery! A huge load was taken off of me. I now had fifteen hours a week to do things around the house, run errands, or simply go for a walk. I had time to rest physically and emotionally, making me a better caregiver. The at-home support for my son also meant I could now take my wife to her medical appointments.

That year of support was personally crucial. Having flexibility was a gift, and I am sure it kept my sanity and health intact! During that year my wife’s health began to improve slowly. Today, she has recovered most of her strength and mobility and is able to help with Keith again.

My advice for caregivers is that it’s a marathon, not a sprint. Find a way to prioritize taking care of yourself. We all need help.

Keith’s mental condition continues to deteriorate, but I am optimistic and hopeful now that we have the ability to continue to provide care for our son. Our respite caregivers help us maintain a healthy physical and emotional balance for ourselves as we walk this marathon journey with our son.
We educate young people about Alzheimer’s and brain health. By fostering a global movement, we are accelerating progress in Alzheimer’s research, education, and prevention.

Catherine Preisler - Director, Software

Humble Bundle is a distribution platform where users come to buy games, ebooks, software, and other digital content. Our mission from the beginning was, and is, to support charitable organizations around the world while providing awesome content to users at great prices. Without our community of users and developers who work with us and give back to the community, we would not be Humble Bundle.

Hilarity for Charity first came up in conversation when I was putting together a bundle with one of our biggest software developers, Magix. Their SVP, Markus Gunn, and I were discussing certain causes and charities to support with this specific bundle and decided to support Hilarity for Charity. Markus told me that his family been affected by Alzheimer’s and that he was also from Canada, just like Seth Rogen! I was then on a quest to get Hilarity for Charity onboard so that I could meaningfully contribute to a cause that has personally affected someone I know.

I think HFC began with a passion to raise awareness and help families affected by this disease. My belief is that you are a better caregiver when you can take care of yourself, and HFC gives caregivers a respite from worrying about their loved ones. HFC also educates younger generations, which is important in helping reduce the risk of people developing Alzheimer’s down the road.

OMD Jordan Alperin - Assistant Negotiator, National Broadcast

For two decades, my mother has been fighting for her health, overcoming every obstacle thrown her way. Unfortunately, one of these challenges is battling early-onset Alzheimer’s. Watching someone you love struggle with such an overwhelming condition is heartbreaking. It becomes painfully clear that the brighter moments must be cherished.

I work for Omnicom Media Group (OMD) and “Omnicom Media Group’s Holiday Hope” is a charitable initiative that awards foundations that mean the most to their employees. In 2018, Hilarity for Charity was selected to receive $20,000 on OMD’s behalf. I am ecstatic to see how these donations to HFC make a positive impact on the local and global community.

What stands out to me about Hilarity for Charity is that they are not only working to reduce stigma and promote brain health, the organization also allocates funds to support patients and families who need help now.

It’s a rough road ahead in the fight against Alzheimer’s. My hope is that Hilarity for Charity continues to raise funds to help families today via positive platforms such as their comedy specials, online PSAs, and generally optimistic demeanor. I am a firm believer in conveying a message through positive means, and Hilarity for Charity does this like no other.
We activate the next generation of Alzheimer’s advocates through our programs, including HFC U and HFC Presents, reaching thousands of young people across the country and raising awareness and funds for Alzheimer’s care and research.

Our Impact

HFC U
- Students on college campuses across the US joined forces to #KickAlzInTheBallz
- Raised in 2018: $32,174
- Total raised since inception: $320,000
- Activated students on 140 college campuses

HFC Presents
- Our crowdfunding platform empowered fundraisers across the U.S. to support our mission
- Raised in 2018: $56,015
- Total raised since inception: $85,943

HFC Stories
- Sharing one’s Alzheimer’s story isn’t always easy, but it reminds families that they are not alone.
- 150 new stories submitted on our Many Faces of Alzheimer’s wall in 2018
- 200 stories submitted since inception
TERRY

My connection to Alzheimer’s is unfortunately a strong one. I lost my father-in-law and mother-in-law to the disease. My own mother was diagnosed with Alzheimer’s and, recently, my sister was diagnosed with Lewy body dementia (LBD).

That’s why I decided to run 1,000 miles - an outrageous physical act - to fight Alzheimer’s. My daughter told me about Hilarity for Charity and I was hooked! I absolutely love how the funds are disbursed and, with the word “Hilarity,” that the premise of laughter is implied! My mother has the greatest sense of humor, and we are a family that loves to laugh.

Why did I run a 1000 miles? I have always loved the saying: “A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step.” My mother had been recently diagnosed, and I was feeling utterly helpless, angry, and scared. I wanted to show that I am willing and able to fight and that maybe, just maybe, my 61-year-old body could hold up for this epic effort to raise funds and awareness for this hideous affliction. The force of this belief was so powerful that it allowed me to take that first step to run 1000 miles and climb to the very top of Mt. Whitney with nothing more than a daughter’s undying love for her mother.

Looking ahead, my hope is the same as it is for so many: a cure, awareness, and the funds to fight the disease and care for those who are diagnosed and for people who are caring for their loved ones.

TARYN

I’ve been following my mom’s ultra [marathons] since I was a kid. For this run, she wanted to start from her front door in Enumclaw, WA, and end on top of Mt. Whitney in California. She wanted to run to fight Alzheimer’s.

I mapped out the course for her and suggested that Hilarity for Charity should be the organization she supported with the run because of its focus on helping caregivers. Alzheimer’s runs rampant in my family, and so many of us are, and will be, caregivers.

I’m looking down the barrel of some very hard years. I’m going to watch this thing take out another grandma, my dad, and now my aunt. I’ve got three siblings and we have Alzheimer’s on both sides of the family. What are the odds that all of us will be in the clear? They aren’t good, and I hope for a cure every single day.

I’m so grateful for what HFC does and how they supported my mom. My hope is that we keep raising awareness and pushing harder for new studies. It’s incredibly hard to not feel helpless in such a large fight, but every little thing helps, every penny given, every mile run.

I also want other young people to be aware of how prominent Alzheimer’s is. I want to remind them to enjoy time with their family and to support caregivers and those searching for a cure.

In 2017, Hilarity for Charity received its 501 (c)(3) status, separate from the Alzheimer’s Association. At the time of transition, funds were dispersed to HFC’s national care partner, Home Instead Senior Care held in reserve, and designated for HFC’s Respite Care Grant program. Additionally, funds in the amount of $200,000 remained at the Alzheimer’s Association designated specifically to fund research. HFC’s current activities raise funds in advance for programs executed in subsequent years.

Thank you for joining Hilarity for Charity in the fight against Alzheimer’s!

Share your story
Alzheimer’s families need support and they need to know they are not alone. Share your own Alzheimer’s story to add hope to their journey.

Fight for the future
Join our global movement to accelerate progress in Alzheimer’s research, education, and prevention. Throw your own HFC event and help us fight for the future.

Support a family in need
While there isn’t a cure for Alzheimer’s, there is care. Transform the lives of families by providing them with the care and support they need.
